INDUSTRY NEWS

Singapore boosts maritime, aviation hub role as cargo flows shift and supply chain risks rise

Singapore is taking strategic steps to enhance its handling capacity amid shifting cargo flows and rising supply chain risks. Key initiatives include expanding Tuas Port, upgrading Changi Air Cargo Hub and developing an intermodal logistics prototype to integrate maritime, air, and land transport. These efforts aim to improve efficiency, reduce transshipment time, and reinforce Singapore's competitiveness as a global trade hub.

Tuas Port, with its automation capabilities and deep-sea berths, is set to handle up to 65 million TEUs annually, strengthening Singapore's maritime connectivity. Enhancements to Changi Air Cargo Hub will improve air freight handling, catering to the rise in e-commerce and high-value shipments. Additionally, the development of a digital intermodal logistics solution will streamline cargo movement across different modes of transport, ensuring greater efficiency in supply chain operations.

These improvements come at a crucial time as global supply chains evolve due to geopolitical shifts, nearshoring trends and increasing sustainability concerns. Businesses are rethinking logistics strategies to mitigate risks and optimise costs, making seamless transshipment capabilities more critical than ever. As a key node in global trade, Singapore must continue investing in infrastructure and technology to maintain its role as a preferred logistics hub.

PLG is well-positioned to support businesses in this evolving landscape. With our strategic location near key port and airport facilities, we offer seamless end-to-end logistics solutions, from warehousing to multimodal transport. Our expertise in managing transshipment cargo enables our partners to benefit from Singapore's enhanced connectivity and operational efficiencies.

As the region moves toward greater logistics integration, we remain committed to delivering innovative supply chain solutions that help businesses stay agile and competitive.

Renewal of ZGST and STP license

We are pleased to announce the successful renewal of our Zero-GST Warehouse (ZGST) Scheme and Secure Trade Partnership (STP) license.

These key licenses are vital in ensuring that we continue to deliver secure, compliant and efficient logistics services to our customers. The ZGST license allows us to provide tax-free storage solutions, helping our clients reduce costs when managing goods in transit. The STP license, issued by Singapore Customs, certifies that our supply chain processes meet the highest security and compliance standards, providing peace of mind for our partners. Not all local companies in Singapore hold these licenses.

Our Renewal of Halal and IATA certification

We are pleased to announce the renewal of our Halal and IATA certifications, reflecting our commitment to delivering trusted and reliable logistics solutions.

The Halal certification ensures our processes meet the required standards for handling Halal goods with care and integrity, while the IATA certification highlights our compliance with international air cargo handling standards, ensuring safe and efficient air freight services.

At PLG, we are proud to be among the select few that offer a comprehensive suite of logistics services, positioning us as a reliable one-stop solution provider. From warehousing to customs processes, we continuously strive to meet global best practices to provide seamless, secure, and culturally sensitive solutions that address the evolving needs of our clients.

These renewed certifications reflect our unwavering dedication to maintaining high service standards and ensuring that your goods move securely, efficiently, and in compliance with all regulatory requirements. Thank you for trusting PLG as your logistics partner. We look forward to continuing to serve your business needs with excellence.

Chinese New Year Celebration

At PLG, we believe that meaningful connections make for a stronger, more enjoyable workplace. This Chinese New Year, we are continuing one of our favourite traditions — hosting mini inter-department events like our hotpot sessions during lunch breaks!

These simple gatherings have been a great way for colleagues to come together, share a meal, and enjoy a little festive cheer. Taking short breaks to connect with one another over food not only brings us closer but also helps us recharge and return to work feeling more relaxed and refreshed.

The core of Chinese New Year is about togetherness and unity, values that we hold close at PLG. Here is to more moments of connection, collaboration, and success in the year ahead.

Wishing everyone a prosperous and joyful New Year!
